CHICAGO – May 2, 2006 – Oil-Dri Corporation of America (NYSE: ODC) today announced plans to raise prices and continue fuel surcharges in an effort to combat record high energy and materials costs.

Dan Jaffee, President and CEO said, “Rising energy and other materials costs are continuing to have a negative impact on our margins. We have remained focused on implementing internal cost reduction programs that maximize our manufacturing efficiency; however, record-breaking energy costs make those efforts an ongoing challenge. Our delivered cost of goods is very sensitive to increases in the costs of natural gas and fuel oil, as well as the costs of packaging materials, steel and diesel fuel. These inputs are key components in the manufacturing and delivery process.

“We very much appreciate our customers’ understanding and support during this very difficult external environment.”

By July 31, 2006, Oil-Dri expects to implement its revised pricing schedule throughout all markets in both its Business-to-Business and Retail and Wholesale operating segments.
